

ABSTRACT

A surface mountable electronic device includes a body with a first surface for mounting the device. The first surface has recessed portions therein. Electrical contacts are provided in the first surface. The electrical contacts include first portions that form at least a portion of at least one inner surface of said recessed portions.